Survey about chlamydia management

Management of Chlamydia Cases in Australia (MoCCA) is a National Health and Medical Research Council funded partnership grant that is investigating strategies to strengthen management of chlamydia cases in Australian general practice.

If you're a GP working in Australian general practice, researchers at the University of Melbourne would love to hear about your chlamydia management practices and your opinion on some proposed strategies to support care of patients with a chlamydia infection.

Complete the short 20 minute survey here: <http://go.unimelb.edu.au/w7rr>

Participants may be eligible to go into the draw to win one of ten $100 Coles/Myer gift vouchers*
