

Be skilled to improve ear health in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Communities

About the EarTrain program

EarTrain is a fully funded* online training program for primary health care professionals to identify and manage otitis media and other hearing conditions in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities.

The program is delivered across Australia by TAFE NSW and is funded by the Australian Government. EarTrain is a Closing the Gap initiative available until 30 June 2024.

Practical Skills Workshop

EarTrain and the Aboriginal Health Council of Western Australia (AHCWA) are running a series of 1-day workshops to provide practical skills in:

- * Tympanometry (under 6 months of age)
- * Screening Otoacoustic Emissions
- * Referral Pathways.

You will gain practical experience and confidence in carrying out these skills under the guidance of experienced audiologists, with ongoing support after you've completed the workshop. This workshop is ideal for those requiring an introduction or refresh in these practical skills. Participants who attend this workshop and complete logbooks will receive a Certificate of Participation.
